A FEW WORDS FROM YOURS TRULY

As I write this, Memorial Day 2019 is already history – and this upcoming summer season's gearing up to be very interesting for yours truly (which I won't get into, at least for right now – after all, I'm crafting this very issue in late-May).

Fortunately, I haven't neglected my various creative projects – among them, my current novel, THE JANUS TERROR – and I've already completed close to twenty-five chapters of it. (To learn more about its progress – please go to Page#5 of this very issue!) And I have one or two surprises that I plan to unleash in the coming weeks that I'll try to explain and fit into this issue.

I'm hoping that you'll enjoy this issue of LAVERNOICH'S LOUNGE – and just as important – actually be encouraged to check out and purchase some of my creative wares. And yes, you can e-mail me at jlavernoich2008@hotmail.com – and let me know what you think of this issue (not to mention give yours truly suggestions on how to greatly improve it). So – please keep on web surfen' – and never trust a so-called "Reality TV" creator/producer (and especially if he unintentionally helps catapult a certain so-called "Reality TV" personality into the White House – you already know who I'm referring to!).

In case you're interested, this is a pencil-and-ink character sketch of Harlan "Beef" Barkley, one of the key characters in my current novel, THE JANUS TERROR, for which I've completed close to twenty-five chapters of it. Please note that at one point, I had intended to do THE JANUS TERROR as a comic book mini series -- hence, the character sketches like the one that you're seeing now.

I still plan on writing the rest of THE JANUS TERROR and getting it published before year's end -- to learn more about its progress, please click on the following below this very text box and illustration that you're now viewing:

ARTIST'S ALLEY

Drawing, photographs & other visual goodies

Since the summer season's fast approaching, the spotlight's on these specialty photographs with an outdoors feel:

The journeys that we take throughout our own lifetimes depend largely on the countless discoveries and truths that we encounter and learn during our travels.

Out in the country, those who experience nature are in awe of its pure beauty -- and the calm serenity that eases our minds and souls.
