A FEW WORDS FROM YOURS TRULY

Welcome to the fifth issue of LAVERNOICH'S LOUNGE – which, in some respects, is long overdue. And especially since the previous issue was last published – almost two years ago.

As for what's happened between the end of 2016 and right now – for one thing, I've had to deal with a personal loss in my family, part of the many changes that's already affected my life. And yet, during that particular time span, I've managed to work on and get completed a good deal of my creative projects – which many of you are already aware of, for those of you who've actually surfed the Internet. (For those of you who aren't – please read this very issue that's now in your possession.)

And that's not all – in the past few months, I've been planning on increasing my visibility, and not just across the Internet – and thanks in part to yours truly gaining a bit more breathing space in the past few weeks, I might just succeed in that particular task. (Again, please read this very issue – all will definitely be explained.)

As the Summer of 2018 enters its twilight, new creative projects are currently on the horizon – including another book, which I hope to write and have published before year's end. (More news on that soon – and not just in future issues.) I'm hoping that after reading this very issue of LAVERNOICH'S LOUNGE – and all future issues – you'll not only continue to support my creative efforts, but also spread the word to everyone else you know.

So – please read on and enjoy. (And please keep on web surfing.)
